CORPORALS.

"One of the best officers in this regiment" is the phrase used by Col.
Cary F. Spence, 117th Infantry, A.
E. F., in transmitting to Mrs. Mary de Paschalis, 207 C street southeast, this city, the posthumous citation for bravery awarded to her son, Lieut. Edward G. de Paschalis, who died in France October 27 last of pneumonia, following influenza contracted in the performance of his duty.

Citation's Narrative.

On the evening of September 29, the citation states, the Washington officer was ordered over the entire front-line positions of the 117th Infantry to secure the disposition of the troops. He worked almost continuously under enemy shellfire and in almost utter darkness. However, he secured all available information and returned with a sketch showing the disposition of each organization. During this battle and others this officer display-ed marked devotion to duty.

Idolized by Officers and Men. According to his captain, George R. Hedge, Lieut. de Paschalis rendered especially praiseworthy service while the 117th was occupying the line in Belgium. In the big push on September 29 and 30 Lieut. de Paschalis was the first officer from regimental headquarters who gained contact with the cattered battalions and brought back first-hand valuable information to the colonel. During the long drive from October 7 to October 20 he performed excellent work. "The officers and men of his com-"wrote Capt. Now As Never Before You Need the Encyclopaedia Britannica

Handy Volume Issue There probably is not a man, woman or child among the 100,000,000 inhabitants of the United States upon whom the war has not had a profound effect. Great reforms are being hastened and this will be a better and cleaner world after the ordeals of fire through which it has passed. The participation of the United States as never before in the world's affairs has brought to the people new interests not limited in the neighborhood, town or city in which they live, but interests that are world wide. A miracle has been wrought in men's minds, a miracle in which there is a tremendous thirst for knowledge, a knowledge which is absolutely necessary today, as never before. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many different subjects in which they are interested, as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge-the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information-The Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica furnishes practical, detailed and authoritative articles of great value to the business man, to the manufacturer, to the importer, to the worker in the many new industries. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is the great work of useful information. It is the book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work

A Complete Library of Knowledge

But this marvelous work with its 41,000 separate articles is more than a guide for the enterprising business man of the United States, fitting him to be a citizen of the worlda world merchant. The Britannica is a complete library of knowledge on every subject. It discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, inventions and engineering; history and race development; wars and peace; architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology and geography, biography, law and physics. You and your family will find in the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred questions which every day come to your mind and to your wives' and children's minds-it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

What Is Before Us?

We are in a transitional period between war and peace. There will be many serious post-war problems which will demand settlement. Do you know what the tendencies are in our industrial life? Does peace send the prices of commodities up or down? Will wages go up or down? Will money be "easy" or scarce? Have nations heretofore faced bankruptcy or have they repudiated their war debts? Will there be a tremendous immigration to this country or will there be emigration? Are you inclined to be stampeded with fear of what will happen when peace is finally concluded or are you sitting down and studying the facts of past cases that are somewhat similar? Are you familiar with what happened after other wars-in England after the Napoleonic campaigns-in the United States after the Civil War-to France, to Germany and to Neutrals after the Franco-Prussian War? Do you understand the questions that come up in the Peace Conferences—geographical, political, industrial? Are you equipped to know what is justice and right in dealing with Germany; also with regard to the "new

This wonderful book of knowledge-the new Encyclopaedia Britannica-literally brings the whole world to the reader. It tells all about foreign countries, their people, their history, their progress, their resources, their imports and exports. An hour a day with the Britannica will give you as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the

Woman Needs the Britannica As Never Before

The war has changed the status of women industrially and politically. By the necessities of war women were forced to take the places of men in our industries and they successfully filled positions of great responsibility. The mother must keep abreast of the great thoughts and movements that are taking place throughout the world, that are vitally affecting her. Woman today in her greater and more important place in the world needs the Encyclopaedia Britannica as never before-she needs it to teach her how to fulfill her new status as a citizenhow to make her more efficient in the business world and, as a mother, to make herself broader and a bigger woman so she can bring her children up according to the highest standards.
